

Much Depends on Britain's Ability to Counter-Attack

Rommel's Forces Show Signs of Terrific Strain

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Wide World War Analyst

Nazi Field Marshal Rommel has thrust his armored columns closer to the heart of Egypt, and the Allied position continues extremely grave.

That grim fact isn't without some slight solace for the defense, however. The German leader's already dangerously extended communications have been still further lengthened and there are signs that his troops are becoming fagged from the fierce drive which has carried them to within 100 miles of Britain's key naval and air base at Alexandria.

Meantime General Sir Claude Auchinleck, canny Scots commander of the British forces in the Middle East, has been fighting a rearguard action to give him time to reorganize his battered army and receive further reinforcements. The main battle hasn't yet been joined, but it can't be far in the offing. When it comes much will depend on the British power of counter-attack.

If the war has seemed far away and unreal to some of us, this great crisis should bring it very close, for upon a sweeping success in the battle for Egypt Hitler might build a victory which would bridge the Atlantic and threaten the security of our very homes.

All of us know, of course, that the Nazi leader's chances of winning the war depend on his breaking through to fresh supplies this year. We know, too, that the only feasible sources are the Caucasus and the Middle East, with their rich oil deposits and other resources.

Moreover it's clear that Hitler's offensives in the Ukraine and in Egypt are correlated, and that if both of them are successful they will form a vast pair of pincers which will grip Britain's interests in the eastern Mediterranean. What may not be so apparent, however, is how a Nazi victory in Egypt alone might have ramifications which would give the rest of the Middle East into the clutching hands of the German ally.

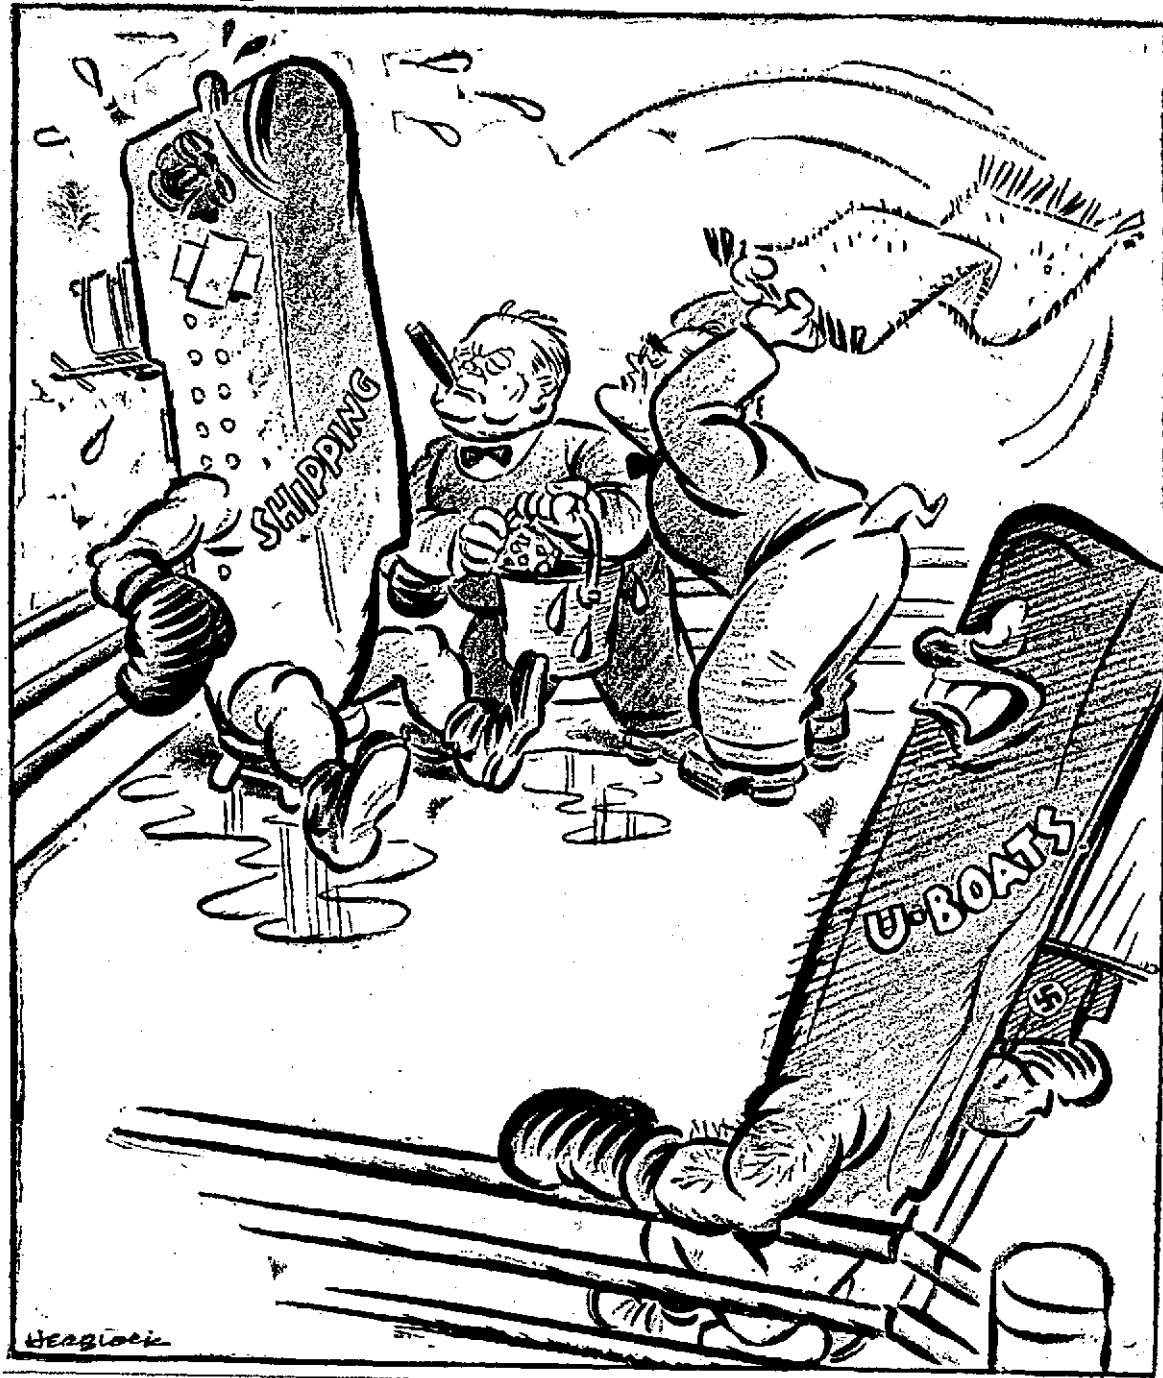

If Alexandria should fall it might be the fatal blow to John Bull's control of the eastern Mediterranean. It's true, as London points out, that he might retire with his warships to Port Said, Egypt, or to Haifa, Palestine. But those ports aren't properly exposed to mother sea.

Moreover, capture of Alexandria would render Port Said and Cairo vulnerable, and if these two places fell into Hitler's hands, he would be master of Egypt. His Axis then could pour troops and equipment into Egypt and smash directly at the Middle East through Palestine.

You can carry this unhappy hypothetical situation on until the Axis has overrun the Middle East and is striking at the Russian left flank up through the Caucasus, while driving against the Soviet line in the Ukraine. Meantime the Japs would swarm the Indian Ocean and make juncture with Hitler. Indian nationalists would then have a chance to apply their theories of passive resistance to a Nipponese invasion.

One wouldn't think that any further dangers could be lurking in the bushes, but there is still another. There is always the possibility that the fall of Alexandria and Cairo would precipitate an uprising of the Arab peoples in the many countries in the Arab world in Africa and the Middle East.

expense. She is only asking that we make good on some of the nice things we are saying about democracy and about the rights of all peoples to make their own governmental mistakes in their own ways.

Specifically, China wants to know what we are going to do about extraterritoriality and exclusion. Extraterritoriality is the multisyllabic name for that privilege, which all western nations have claimed and exercised, of establishing on Chinese soil little private domains of our own, in which the Chinese had no more rights than in Tasmania.

It is as though, in the Chinatown of San Francisco or New York, territories had been set aside over which the United States relinquished all control. Chinese soldiers would guard them; Chinese courts would function; our police could not touch criminals in those Chinatowns.

Needless to say, neither we nor the British, the French or the Germans would consider granting China such rights. Why, then, should we expect the Chinese to feel happy when we, through superior military might, have enforced such an ignominious bargain upon China?

Exclusion is the antithesis of extraterritoriality. While we force China to admit any accidental at his will, and waive all control over him while on selected Chinese soil, we forbid Chinese to enter the United States at all—except temporarily under drastic control—or to become citizens under any circumstances.

This rankled almost as much as extraterritoriality. But the argument here is less clean cut. There are important economic angles. The great difficulty springs from oriental ability and willingness to work for a few cents a day, to live on rice and water, and thereby to compete for jobs on a basis that no American should be expected to consider.

With the kindest of feeling toward China, and all gratitude and admiration for the splendid fight they are making, there is a question whether we should make any sweeping promises about exclusion. But we can proclaim to the world, at once, that after we have helped chase the Japs we shall pull out our troops and renounce forever any claim to extraterritoriality in China.

Ten Million Lost to Army

By ROY ROBERTS

Denver, July 1 (AP)—Ten million American adults are lost to war industry and the armed forces, the United States Commissioner of Education declared today, because they can't read newspapers or simple printed directions or write letters or A-B-C instructions.

"They are the functionally illiterate," said John W. Studebaker of Washington, D. C., in an address prepared for delivery before the National Education Association annual convention, who are "seriously handicapped as soldiers and as workers—not because they are unintelligent but because they find it exceedingly difficult to understand."

Culminating a long fight against illiteracy, Studebaker said, the U. S. Office of Education has prepared a program "which we hope will shortly be submitted to the congress."

Discussion of its details now would be premature, the commissioner explained, but he went on: "Our eventual goal must be a population to whom accessible free public schools and good teaching are everywhere available."

The "legions lost to us in this hour of peril" through inability to read and write, Studebaker said, "may number some of our best intellects and capabilities."

Yesterday Studebaker told the NEA that an impending teacher shortage next year may mean the closing of many schools, the lowering of standards in others.

front was necessary to win the war because bombing of German cities alone will not defeat them. "Military experts doubt that it will be possible to win the war in less than another year. However, it is possible unless Germany goes on the defensive, and in that event it will be a long drawn out war," the Senator said.

In closing his address, Mr. Spencer warned that all unnecessary spending both by government and advised that individuals should not let their citizens must be curtailed. He spent any money, except for those things absolutely necessary, and that everyone should attempt to get out of debt before the war is over. Pointing out that there will be a period of readjustment after the war, the Senator said he had never heard of anyone going broke who didn't owe anyone a dollar and

Storms Cause Three Deaths

Little Rock, July 1 (AP)—Scattered thundershowers caused deaths of three persons and injury of a fourth in Arkansas this week. Albert Watkins, Cave City farmer, was killed by lightning while working in a barn Monday. Homer Watkins, owner of the barn, was injured seriously.

Elvett T. Steadman, Negro woman cotton chopper, was killed by lightning while returning from a field near Tuckerman. Elbe Gale Franklin, Negro woman hotel employee of DeQueen, was killed when she stepped on a high tension wire that had been torn from its supports by lightning.

328 Ships Sunk in the Atlantic

By The Associated Press

The sinking of a medium-sized Panamanian cargo ship by an Axis submarine off the Atlantic coast sent the toll of western Atlantic ship losses to 328 today (Wed) in the unofficial Associated Press tabulation.

This loss and the announcement late yesterday of the torpedoing of a small Canadian merchant ship in the Caribbean were the most recent announced by the Navy.

One member of the Panamanian crew of 32 was lost while the Canadian vessel sank so rapidly after two torpedo hits that only six men survived out of 30. In the three sinkings announced yesterday's the loss of life totaled 67.

Two stewardesses and two other members of the Panamanian ship's crew had been aboard a vessel which was bombed and sunk off Malta last February.

County Fair Fate at Stake

Little Rock, July 1 (AP)—County livestock show associations are awaiting a decision by the Arkansas Livestock Show Association as a guide to their action on a suggestion by Director Joseph Eastman of the Office of Defense Transportation that all fairs be canceled this year. Secretary Clyde Byrd of the state association said today.

Byrd has conducted an informal poll of county fair officials since Eastman's announcement and he has nearly all he had contacted were undecided about their plans.

The state livestock show association will meet here at 2 p. m. Friday to act on Eastman's proposal. Eastman appealed to Governor Adkins yesterday to use his influence to call off all state and county fairs as a fire conservation measure.

Negotiates to Build Pipeline

New York, July 1 (AP)—Phillips Petroleum Co. and the Mississippi-Kansas Pipe Line Co. were today negotiating a $10,000,000 deal with the Columbia Gas & Electric Corp. involving the purchase of Columbia's entire interest in Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line Co.

If the negotiations were successfully concluded it would settle one of the hardest fought battles ever waged in the utility industry and rank as one of the biggest deals in the history of natural gas operations.

The transaction involves the proposal of Phillips to purchase 40.32 shares of Panhandle Eastern for approximately $10,500,000. This stock is owned by Columbia Oil & Gasoline Corp., a subsidiary of Columbia Gas & Electric, and represents 50.1 per cent of the outstanding stock of Panhandle Eastern. Under the arrangements, Phillips would divide the stock equally with Missouri-Kansas pipe line, the two concerns financing the operation through bank loans. This would eliminate Columbia Gas & Electric from the "Mokan" and Eastern Panhandle picture.

Panhandle Eastern serves approximately 750,000 customers in 200 communities, including Detroit.

Moscow Recognizes Independence Day

Kuibyshev, Russia, July 1 (AP)—The Moscow New, now published in Kuibyshev, took note today of the coming United States Independence Day by stressing again the importance of establishing a second front in Europe.

Replying to a Nazi broadcaster who had said the United States had never fought any real battles, the newspaper said "the best answer to this and similar contemptible slanders against the American people is what the Fascists soon will get in western Europe from the AEF and the British army."

Little Rock, July 1 (AP)—Approximately 40 retail beer establishments in Arkansas have been denied permits for the 1942-43 fiscal year because of protests by law enforcement officials and the Arkansas Committee of the Brewing Industry Foundation, Supervisor J. M. Whittemore of the revenue department's beverage division said today.

Fishermen Take Notice

Kerrville, Tex., (AP)—Specialists at Texas A. & M. College are experimenting to determine the ages of fish from their scales.

Fish of various species are caught and banded and a few Sportsmen have been asked to turn in banded fish, when caught again, and by comparing scales the experts hope to find a way to estimate their ages.

Vice Admiral President Roosevelt sent to the Senate the nomination calling for the step up in rank.

He timidly approached the home of Mrs. R. A. Bryant, who gave him a pair of her husband's trousers and called police to report Snyder's predicament.

WPB Curbs Delivery of Some Machinery

Washington, July 1 (AP)—The War Production Board's curbs on sales and deliveries of certain industrial machinery were extended today to cover all orders for a single unit of new woodworking, sawmill and logging equipment costing more than $250.

Increasing use of plywood and other woods in aircraft, boats and other military items has made wood an important factor in war program, WPB explained.

amendment to the machinery, effective immediately, prohibits the sale of woodworking, sawmill and logging machinery except on "approved orders". Such orders are those of the Army and Navy, certain other federal agencies and United Nations and lend-lease orders, and certain orders carrying military priority ratings.

SPECIAL INVESTIGATOR

By BLANCHE ROBERTS

THE STORY: Judith Kingsley and Tom Burke, employee of an airplane factory, are en route to the west coast when foreign agents kidnap Tom from an airplane. Judith leaves the plane with the new bomber plane which she had piloted. Pursued by the agents, she finds Tom in a cabin, leaves him fighting with his captors, thumps two sides and, after many narrow escapes, eludes the pursuers and reaches San Diego.

WHERE IS TOM?

CHAPTER VII
It was after 1 o'clock in the afternoon when Judith opened her tired and swollen eyes. She hadn't intended to sleep so long, but once asleep she could not waken. Every bone and muscle in her exhausted body ached. It took all her strength and will power to get out of bed.

She walked to the window and looked down on the crowded street. For no apparent reason her heart quickened its beat and intuition told her the car parked across from the hotel belonged to the spy ring. A man walked slowly up and down the street, occasionally glancing at the hotel entrance.

"They have found out in some way that I am here," a gleam of light came into her eyes as she turned from the window to the telephone.

"Please send me a maid," she told the man at the desk. And while she waited, she mused: "I've come this far on my own and I can go the rest of the way. I'll deliver these plans in person and nothing is going to stop me."

To the maid she said, "Could I rent a uniform from you?"

"Oh, yes, miss," the girl replied eagerly at the sight of the bill in Judith's hand. "I'll get it for you now."

Judith left the hotel by the servants' entrance without being accosted and found a cab. An hour later she contacted the manager's office at the west coast factory.

He looked up, startled at seeing a smiling, redheaded maid standing there. He cleared his throat while Judith enjoyed his embarrassment.

"I don't blame you for being amazed, Mr. Mathews. I'm Judith Kingsley of the eastern office. I have the plans Mr. Burke was bringing to you. Sorry they are late in arriving."

Mathews got hastily to his feet and came around the desk to take her hands. There was deep admiration in his eyes.

"You got through!" he exclaimed, overjoyed. "When we heard Tom Burke was missing we had just about given up hopes of the plans. Mr. Watson has been frantic about you. You'd better call the home office right away. Here"—he pushed her into a chair—"I'll have the call put right through for you."

"But what happened to Tom Burke?" Judith asked fearfully. Mathews shook his head slowly. "We don't know. The plane was located yesterday and brought in. The passengers told us what happened before and after your disappearance, but they were all hazy about the looks of the men."

"The last time I saw Tom," said Judith, her voice low and her eyes misty, "he was fighting with his captors. He ordered me to leave. I had the plane. He dropped them in my seat when they were taking him off the liner. The spies had him in a shack near where the plane was brought down."

"The FBI men found the shack. It was empty, of course."

"Of course," she repeated. "They would have Tom with them. So he must be all right," she said, more for her own benefit than for the manager's.

When the long distance call came through, Judith gave Watson a brief resume of her experiences.

"I didn't know I was letting you in for all that," Watson told her contently. "I want you to stay out there in California for a rest. Three weeks' vacation—and a raise, too."

She hung up, and lifted sad, speculative eyes to Mathews. But immediately another idea made her eyes sparkle with adventure. "I can help find Tom Burke and the spy ring. I'm sure of it."

"How?"

She shrugged her slim shoulders. "Just leave it to me. Those spies have been on my trail constantly. Just because I have delivered the plans doesn't mean they will let me go free. I rather imagine they'd like to get hold of me for no other reason than to put me out of the picture."

Mathews sat silent and condescending. Judith walked to a window and looked out.

"I wouldn't be surprised if someone was waiting for me right now."

"We wouldn't think of letting you take such a chance," Mathews exploded. "I'm going to send you back east in a private plane from the field here."

Judith shook her head. "Tom's life may be at stake," she said crisply, then added smilingly. "Besides, I've just been promised three weeks' vacation."

"Let's hear your plan, Miss Kingsley."

"Those men won't let Tom go—not while he knows things they can use, or while he knows their hideouts. If I can help the Federal men catch the spies and rescue Tom, I think it is my duty—a duty I want to perform."

She put a hand on Mathews' arm. "The only way to find Burke quickly is for them to take me. You can have someone trail me, can't you?"

He nodded, but there was a deep frown between his eyes. "There is no guarantee that they won't kill you before you can be rescued. We just can't take that risk."

"I insist, Mr. Mathews," she told him firmly. "I'll do it anyway, you know," she added defiantly. "Tom Burke would do the same for me and not even ask permission."

"Any man who had ever laid eyes on that red head of yours would fight for you, Miss Kingsley."

She blushed, but continued her argument.

"You see, I know three of the men in the ring—the ones on the plane. If they aren't caught, I'd live in terror all my life. They would know I could identify them and they would want me out of the way. And as long as they are at large, our country is in real danger."

Mathews threw up his hands. "All right," he laughed. "I never could win an argument with a pretty woman. I'll get in touch with the government men right now."

She grinned, elated over her quick victory. As soon as he put through his call, she said:

"I'd like some money, my boss said nothing was too good for me."

"That's right, young lady. We will take down the serial numbers just to be on the safe side. They might take it away from you."

"And I'd like a new outfit to wear. This maid's uniform doesn't do me justice," she laughed. "I want to at least look my best if I am to be captured by the enemy. I might be able to flirt my way out. Can you order something sent here, right away?"

"Here"—he handed her the telephone—"get anything you want. I'll send my secretary to help you."

Just before 5 o'clock she was ready to leave the plane factory. She said goodby to the manager, a bright smile on her face, and walked out, head up. She knew there was a man watching her, ready to take up the trail if anything happened to her. She felt secure and unafraid as she stepped into a waiting taxi.

Ouachita Bridge to Be Salvaged for War

Little Rock, July 1 (AP) — A 300-foot steel bridge across the Ouachita river, about 10 miles southwest of Malvern, will be wrecked and salvaged for armament use in a three-pronged contribution to the war effort, the WPA officials said here today.

The span will be blown from its piers by a demolition squad of Second Army engineers in a practice exercise. The steel will be salvaged by WPA crews and sold for scrap with the proceeds going to the national treasury. The wrecking will take place in about three weeks.

The bridge, donated to the steel scrap drive by a lumber company, was used as a logging tram about 15 years ago. It was partially wrecked in a railroad accident and has not been used since.

We, the Women

By RUTH MILLETT

Every community in America has a few "Not Us" families. A "Not Us" family is willing to do anything to help win the war but in convenience itself.

At the announcement of rumor of a scarcity the "Not Us" family doesn't say philosophically (except in public) "We'll just have to get along on less." Instead it rushes out and lays in a supply of the scarce article. Others may have to do without but "Not Us."

It sounds like exaggeration but the "Not Us" family actually grumbles about what a nuisance it is to have to remember to take an old tube to the drugstore when buying a new tube of toothpaste.

Now that sugar rationing has gone into effect the "Not Us" family only gets half a pound a week per person, like everyone else. But they are still enjoying pies, cakes and cookies as usual—which could only be managed by failure to declare that hundred pounds in the basement.

They're Driving Their Tires Thin
The tire shortage scared the daylights out of the "Not Us" family and for a long time they used their car as little as possible, even though they miraculously had more than one spare for it.

But the other day there was a hint that the government might have to take over private automobiles in the future or at least might permit a family to have only five tires. So, the "Not Us" family outside the gasoline ration area is running the wheels off the car

Solons to Decide on Fate of Old Bonds

Little Rock, July 1 — (AP) — Bundles of old state highway and road district bonds which once represented $200,000,000 indebtedness of Arkansas but now are appraised

by a junk dealer as worth no more than $1,500 will gather dust in the capital basement until the 1943 legislature decides what to do with them.

The 1941 legislature prescribed that they be burned publicly.
However, that was before the war.
Since then, scrap paper has risen in value — particularly the fine type used for bond engraving. Governor Adkins suggested they be shredded and sold for junk.

The refunding board agreed with Adkins but until the law is amended the board is unwilling to dispose of them that way, refunding Supervisor Frank Storey, Jr., said today.

Edgar Smith's Bad Luck Loses for White Sox

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

There were only two five-hit ball games pitched in the major leagues yesterday and neither of them was good enough to win.

If you were given a blindfold test and asked to name one of the pitchers who had the misfortune to lose such a well-pitched game it's almost certain you would name Lefty Edgar Smith of the Chicago White Sox on the first guess.

You would be right, of course. Everything happens to cotton-top and last night it was Lou Boudreau. The boy manager of the Indians personally collected four of the five hits made off Smith and one was Boudreau's first homer of the year.

That explains his 12th setback of the season opposite two triumphs, although he has pitched consistently well all year. Jim Bagby, working on one day's rest, kept the Sox to seven safeties in gaining his ninth victory, but needed the aid of Chubby Dean.

The other losing five-hitter also was pitched by a Chicagoan in a night game — the Cubs' big Bill Lee. Getting turned back at Cincinnati 4-1 by the Reds as Ray Starr, the 36-year-old rookie, obtained his 11th victory against three defeats.

Lee was in frequent trouble because of walks, but Starr, hurling a six-hit rebuttal, was able to shut out except for a double steal.

The game was played for Army-Navy relief and, along with an exhibition by the Reds-Cubs stars against the Great Lakes Naval team, drew $30,000 from approximately 30,000 fans.

Mort Cooper of the St. Louis Cardinals matched Starr's 1-3 won and lost record by beating the Pittsburgh Pirates 4-2, but saw his streak of consecutive scoreless innings snapped at 32 and lost whatever chance he had of getting his fourth straight shutout when Elbie Fletcher homered in the first inning.

Altogether Cooper allowed nine hits, the most he has given in any game this year, but the Cards made the same things their own way with Russ Slaughter batting in three runs and Jim Brown accounting for the other on his first home run of the year.

The Boston Braves stopped the Brooklyn Dodgers 4-3 for the first time in 15 games over a period stretching back into the 1941 season. Hugh Casey, the relief specialist, started on the mound for Brooklyn but was removed for a pinch-hitter with the score tied at 3-all in the third. Rookie Les Webber gave up the winning run in the fifth.

Cliff Melton achieved his tenth triumph as the Phils 4-3 on a run which Melton himself singled home in the fourth. The Phils made a double play in every one of the first four innings, but couldn't keep the Giants from getting all their runs in the same span.

The faltering New York Yankees saw their American League lead shrivel to 4 1/2 games as they divided a doubleheader at Philadelphia while the Boston Red Sox swept a pair of games from the Washington Senators.

The Yanks dropped their first tussle 8-5 for their third straight loss and 10th in 15 games. It was the first defeat of the year for Hank Borowy and the first win for Lefty Herman Besso of the A's. The champs almost booted the second, but rallied for three runs in the ninth to win 4-3. Relief pitcher John Lindell knocking in the deciding run with a single. The Red Sox made 26 hits in thumping the Senators 9-8 and 5-2.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
World Wide Sports Columnist

New York, July 1—There won't be any fireworks hereabouts July 4, but there should be plenty at the major league meeting two days later when the boys start bringing up such propositions as the traveling world series and Jack Zeller's no-spring-training idea. From here, Zeller's suggestion of playing late and training at home sounds good, but to make the 1943 season (if any) a success, we favor playing week-ends only until the usual closing time. Teams could use night twilight games Friday night and Saturday night. The Sundays might even take up Art Rooney's idea for the pro footballers and get useful jobs for the other five days... traveling could be cut down to a wartime level by separating the eastern and western sections.

A Honey of a Hunch

Yanks So Bad They Can't Catch a Train
Philadelphia, July 1 (AP)—It has come to this: The New York Yankees, who have squandered three-fourths of an 1-0 game lead recently, are so bad right now they can't even catch a train. Joe Gordon and Ralph (Red) Rolfe, infielders, went to the wrong station in Chicago Sunday and didn't rejoin their mates until just before game time here yesterday.

Giant Rookie to Be Jinxed in All-Star Game

By GAYLE TALBOT
New York, July 1 (AP)—Young Willard Marshall probably has not been tipped off to the fact, but one of baseball's lustiest jinxes will be hanging over his innocent head when he takes the field in the annual all star game next Monday at the Polo Grounds.

Willard is the Giants' 21-year-old rookie outfielder who has been picked to play on the National League side in the mid-season classic — the only freshman chosen on either squad.

The two classic examples of what can happen to a first year youngster in the big game are Joe DiMaggio and Pete Reiser. Each of them has since proved himself a great player, but if Pete and Joe had been judged off their first all-star performances they would have been headed back to the minor leagues the next morning.

DiMaggio, sensation of the early 30s season, flopped miserably in the game at Boston that year. Placed third in the American League's batting order to take full advantage of his amazing punch, Joe went hitless in five attempts and left seven made the game's only error and kicked a no other ball around without penalty. His side lost 4-3. Joe must wake up sweating when he dreams about that afternoon.

Reiser, now leading the National League in hitting, had his run-in with the all-star jinx only a year ago in Detroit. Not only did the Brooklyn star go hitless in four tries, striking out twice, but he did everything in the outfield except stop on his own throwing hand. He made two errors as fast as the ball could reach him. Pete, in short, was terrible.

One of the few rookies to have taken the year contest in his stride was Frank McCormick, Cincinnati's solid first baseman, who made a hit and handled 11 chances faultlessly in his '37 debut.

Marshall is such a silent, retiring customer that he was in training camp for a couple of days this spring before word got around.

His name was not on the Giants' roster as he had been purchased from Atlanta on a conditional basis, and actually very few persons in camp knew who Marshall was when he stepped up to take his first lick in batting practice. Ed Miller, McGee was on the hill.

The first two balls he tossed to Marshall were batted over the right field fence. From approximately that moment, Marshall became a regular Giants outfielder.

At last count he had clouted eight homers, had knocked in 41 runs and was one of the moving spirits in the Giants' attack. He was laid up a few days with an injured shoulder but returned to action yesterday.

Today's Guest Star
Bill Diehl, Norfolk (Va.) Ledger-Dispatch: "Sammy Sneed, who, it will be remembered, blew two big tournaments with last-hole eighties, has resumed using the past tense of the verb 'eat' since he won that P.G.A. championship."

Dutch McCall Good Prospect

By the Associated Press
Dutch McCall, Nashville's 20-year-old southpaw, again has measured up to Manager Larry Gilbert's appraisal as "the best-looking young pitcher prospect I've seen in many a year."

The fire-ball left-hander was called to the mound last night after Chattanooga had scored five runs off Don Fulford in the first inning. He held the Lookouts scoreless for eight innings, whiffed seven batters and won the game 8-5.

Emile Loebbaum, the Louisiana school teacher, turned in a fine five-hit hurling performance for Atlanta as the Crackers downed the tail-end Knoxville Smokies, 10-1.

It gave Atlanta a sweep of the four game series and kept them at the heels of second-place Nashville.

Games between Birmingham and Memphis and New Orleans and Little Rock were postponed. The league-leading Little Rock and New Orleans have been idle since Sunday.

Nashville moved to two and one-half games behind Little Rock after winning from Chattanooga and gaining a split of the four-game series.

Today's games and probable pitchers:
Birmingham (Matuzak) at Little Rock (Moran).
New Orleans (Turbeville) at Memphis (Veverka).
Nashville (Tammis) at Atlanta (Cortes).
Knoxville (unannounced) at Chattanooga (Cullough and Kennedy). (2).

Can't Blackout Lighting Bugs

By MARGARET KERNODLE
Wide World Features Writer

Washington—It's blackout story time in Washington. Best one of the printable bunch goes like this:

Some soldiers, though tanned and tough, blush whenever their pals hum the "Glow Worm", or sing the 1942 version:

"Dim, little lightning bug—
"Damn it, dimmer—"
That's because the first all-night total blackout in Washington recently found fireflies the only real threat to complete darkness. Several soldiers, the fellows say, insisted on investigation of a sizeable glow across the Potomac. It turned out to be a mass display produced by a gang of fireflies.

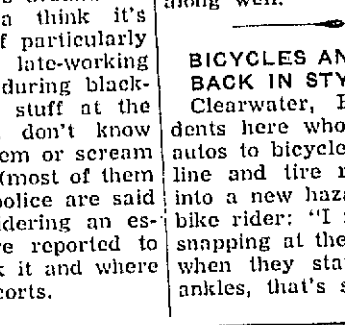

Even Colonel Lemuel Bolles, executive director of OCD, found himself fooled by a firefly glow out Maryland way.

Husbands homeward bound later than they had promised stumbled into bumped shins and special trouble for sure when they failed to get home in time to turn out the porch light. Wardens came knocking at the door and shouting "Your light is on—Why?" One wife asked: "Who wants to say, 'Well, Willy said he'd be home before ten?'"

Side Glances

Most Washingtonians agree on two ways to bridge the blackout: (1) Stay up to smother and sweat because your windows are covered to shut in the light, or (2) go to in first game of doubleheader and latter pitched six-hit ball to win nightcap.

Franchise Tax Rates Higher

Little Rock, July 1 (AP)—Arkansas' approximately 3,500 domestic and foreign corporations, banks and mortgage loan companies will be required to pay $15,051 franchise taxes for 1942, the corporation commission said today.

The tax is payable between July 10 and Aug. 10.

The tax is levied at a rate of 1.500 of one per cent against issued and outstanding capital stock employed in Arkansas.

Total revenue to be derived from the tax will be about $505 more than in 1941. The levy against domestic corporations dropped from $126,263 in 1941 to $120,472 this year while the levy against foreign corporations was up from $178,263 to $184,736.

The commission said these changes were due partly to the fact that several domestic corporations doing business in several states have reorganized as foreign corporations. The franchise tax can be collected on almost the entire capital stock of a domestic corporation only on that part of the stock assignable in Arkansas.

Banks will be required to pay $7,743.45 franchise tax this year as against $7,765 last year and mortgage loan companies will pay $120 as against $235.

Major railroads operating in Arkansas will pay $12,000 more than in 1941.

Each year, at the American Indian Exposition at Anadarko, Okla., some 200 to 300 Indians participate in an Indian pageant conducted by an Indian historian that depicts local Indian history, customs and traditions.

Japs Say Vital Railroad Taken

Tokyo (From Jap Broadcasts) July 1 (AP)—Japanese forces in China effected complete occupation of the Chekiang-Kiangsi railway today as vanguard units driving toward each other from the east and west met at Hengfeng, Domei reported.

"The fall of Hengfeng, climaxing a campaign in the Chekiang and Kiangsi provinces which is little more than a month old, was announced at 10:40 a. m. by Japanese army authorities on the spot," the news agency said.

Japanese flying columns driving eastwardly on Hengfeng from Yangtze smashed Chungking's forces entrenched on a height to the west of Hengfeng, Domei said, at the same time that another Japanese force, striking west from near Shanghai, reached the outskirts of the town.

Bomber Crew Reaches Port

Somewhere in Australia, July 1 (AP)—The crew of an American bomber forced down in the Coral Sea by lack of fuel, has reached an Allied base with a captive Japanese pilot and a wounded American they picked up en route.

Corporal Donald Welch of Berlin, N. H., told the story from a hospital bed.

The bomber sank at night within four minutes, Welch said.

"I smashed a window to get out. One member of the crew had a dislocated back so we put him on the collapsible raft and the rest of us clung to the sides and paddled three miles to an island.

Nearby they found a Japanese flier, also marooned on the island, and took him prisoner.

"The Jap told us he fought in Zeros over Malaya and Java, then the Pacific," said Welch.

The next morning we started walking along the beach when three native canoes happened along.

"They took us to the mainland, where we found some natives tending another wounded American pilot at a village. We stayed at the village for a while and then carried the wounded man through the jungle to a deserted mission station where we got transportation back to an Allied base."

Welch said he was scratched up a bit, but was eager to get back on the job.

Best Things Not Printed

Hollywood—Some of the best things that happen in Hollywood never see the light of print. They are too pat, too good to be credible. Even if you believe them—and you usually don't, any more than you believe the one about the gatekeeper who didn't recognize the star, you don't believe anybody else will.

Here are some samples, for what they're worth. It would be naive to believe them wholly. I would be too, too cynical to brand them fiction.

I. For today's scene in Casablanca, the setting is a Parisian sidewalk cafe, the day before the German occupation. Ingrid Bergman and Humphrey Bogart, obviously lovers, were seated at a table.

To the extras—cafe customers, pedestrians, waiters, —Director Michael Curtiz explained the situation and was the expected action. The mood was light, but with an undercurrent of excitement and strain.

Curtiz starts the scene. There is laughter, Bogart and Bergman lifting their champagne glasses and toast. Suddenly a loudspeaker blares a French voice announcing that the Boches are at the gates of Paris. A woman an extra, seated at a table behind the stars, lowers her head and sobs loudly.

Curtiz stops the action. "That is not what I wanted," he shouts angrily. "I told you to rise, to look grim, defiant, to talk fiercely with one another. This is not a moment for breaking down into tears."

A little bearded man, also an extra, timidly taps Curtiz's shoulder.

"I am sorry, sir," he says quietly. "That is my wife. Please pardon her. But, you see, our home was Paris—and we went through that awful day."

If Lucie Pechler, Paul Henreid's Viennese housekeeper, does not understand how anyone can consider acting as work. As Paul left home to work in "Now, Voyager," Lucie gave him this parting advice. "You go now, son, and make the big face at Miss Betty Davis, and laugh and cry and be funny, sad man. On way home, you stop and look for job, huh?"

III. It was the big wedding scene of "The Gay Senorita." Catherine Craig was being married, and the bridesmaids were Rita Hayworth, the star, Leslie Brooks, Adele Mara. Behind the camera, a little old lady—(what, that extra again?) sat quietly sobbing.

After the scene the assistant director approached her solicitously. No, she said, nothing was the matter.

"It's just," she boo-hooed, "that I can't help it. I ALWAYS cry at weddings."

Keller Attacks License Act

Tuckerman, July 1 (AP)—Dr. Fred Keller of Conway, candidate for governor, declared in a campaign speech here today that a 1941 act requiring merchants to obtain operating licenses as a sales tax enforcement measure should be repealed.

Asserting the licensing feature could be misused, Keller said: "You've seen the actions of the corporation commission, the utilities commission and other under domination of the governor these last two years. You've seen permits for truck lines, bus lines and other business under their domination issued to those who helped elect the governor and refused to those who had fought him."

"If he and his hirelings will pervert the rules to reward their friends and punish their enemies, as they have frequently done in the past, why should you doubt that they will use this new power for their own purposes if they can do so?"

The Prisoner Sure Had Fun!

Towson, Md.—AP—A jinx followed Police Lieut. George Hohman and Sgt. Fred Peters when they made a trip to Harrisville, W. Va., to bring back a stolen automobile and the thief.

To start with, the ancient jalopy already had a flat tire. That was fixed and the two officers and the prisoner crowded back into the coupe, waved goodbye to the West Virginia officials and started off. Two seconds and ten feet later another tire gave out. That was fixed. Only the prisoner was enjoying the delay.

To top it off, on the way home, a truck sideswiped them, causing $100 damage.

Allies Bomb Lae, Rabaul

Somewhere in Australia, July 1 (AP)—Japanese bases in New Britain and New Guinea were attacked by strong forces in Allied bombers before dawn Tuesday in the largest raid in several days, it was disclosed tonight by airmen who participated in the attack.

Despite thick clouds, the Allied planes bombed Rabaul, on New Britain, where large fires were started among installations in the wharf area, they said.

One bomber was reported to have made several runs over its target despite heavy anti-aircraft fire, leaving a blaze which was visible for 20 miles through the overhanging haze.

At about the same time, the pilots said, other bombers attacked Lukanai airport, near Rabaul, dropping demolition bombs on runways and buildings.

Heavy clouds prevented observation of the results. The runways at Lae, New Guinea, were also attacked but a ground haze and a dim moon made the effects unobservable, the bomber pilots reported.

Rockabye Baby

El Paso, Tex.—AP—David Martin decided to take a nap, with his 20-month-old son, Wayne, in the driveway of their home.

Along came a car, ran over Martin and fractured three of his ribs, but the child escaped with only some scratches.

Thirsty? Just Toot

London—AP—In the ward-room of a Canadian destroyer on Atlantic service is a bulb horn from a London taxicab with inscribed plate instructing officers thusly: "Likker-beer, one toot; gin, two toots; whisky, three toots."

If you are thinking by now that Deborah Sampson was one of nature's freaks, skip the thought. Honorably discharged from the Army in November, 1783, she married within a year one Benjamin Gannett and there is no record that anything but conjugal bliss prevailed for the next 43 years, when the Army's one and only (until sometime hence) grand old lady died.

Instead of being horrified, the Congressmen of those days tilted their beavers in courteous admiration. They even approved Deborah's pension—$48 a year at first and finally $76.80 a year.

When she died, Benjamin Gannett got a "widow's pension." It took a special act of Congress, but those who were close to the memory of the nation's first female soldier didn't argue long. With the notation that the history of the young nation "furnishes no similar example of female heroism, fidelity and courage," Congress voted the soldier's widow $80 a year for the rest of his days.

"The WAAC's will be hard put to find a more suitable patron saint than Deborah Sampson."

They New He Couldn't Fly!

Portland, Ore.—AP—In the motor of Henry Troh's airplane, grounded by army orders forbidding civilian planes to fly in this military district, a couple of robins built their nest, hatched three fledglings. The nest was balanced on a cylinder.
